KEVIN'S CAREER

Kevin's mantra is "quality working relationships and quality results for clients equals success". He is strategic in outlook and seeks to create new business opportunities that deliver real and innovative solutions to major individual and organisational problems.

He is driven by identifying, placing and growing the best senior executives for health (public and private), government and not for profit that are available at any point in time. His networks are outstanding and are often at the forefront as sources of information. His networks are built on the basis of trust and allows him to "connect" people for sharing and comparing experience, strategies and results.

Kevin has been the driving force, in collaboration with Jean Fagan, behind the brand and service offerings of HG. HG has extensive global reach, particularly in the health field and continues to grow in the broader public sector where the ability to work across boundaries and with organisations that combine to deliver a better outcome for the public is valued.

He continues to stamp his personal style on leadership solutions through creative leadership edge designs. And is motivated by opportunities to build organisational and leader capacity and performance for a purpose i.e. contributing to societal outcomes.

He enjoys facilitating "top shelf" executive learning sets/strategy groups and is excited by the opportunities to build business and relationships both in Australasia, Asia and the broader global context.
